

THE COUNTY FAIR

Thirty-Sixth Annual Exhibition Will Be Held

SEPTEMBER 21, 22, 23, 24

Premiums and Admission Increased—Amusements Will be of High Class.

The Bedford County fair will be held this year Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 21, 22, 23 and 24. The present indications are that it will be a most successful exhibition. Last year's fair eclipsed all previous records, and the directors are now planning to make the coming fair just as successful in every way.

The people of the county saw last year what could be done in the way of having a good fair and the indications are that they will give their hearty support to the coming exhibition in the way of attendance and bringing exhibits.

The time of holding the fair this year has been changed. It comes two weeks earlier than last year and about a week earlier than usual. This was done in order to get in the circuit of fairs held in the surrounding counties and not have conflicting dates.

First-Class Attractions.
The list of attractions in the amusement line promises to be good. The purses for races have been increased with the hope of drawing a good class of horses. It will be hard to eclipse last year's most successful races, as they were the best ever held in the county. That was due to a combination of circumstances and good luck that may not soon occur again. The directors are taking no chances on luck but are doing all they can to insure good races for the amusement of the public.

Many Premiums Increased.

The directors have felt the need for a long time of increasing the display of live stock at the fair. Good as last year's display was in other lines, yet this department was not up to what it should be and what it could be made by the farmers of Bedford County. In view of this fact, the premiums on horses and cattle have been considerably increased, and re-classified. This was done to meet the wishes of some of the county's progressive stock raisers. It is hoped that they will take advantage of this and bring their stock to the fair. There are fine horses, cattle, sheep and stock of all kind in the county. The directors hope for a good display of the same. In addition to the cash premiums, Dr. A. C. Daniels, the widely known veterinarian, is offering a splendid Special Emergency Case to the farmer making the best general exhibits of stock.

Premium List Ready.

The premium books have been printed and are now being distributed. You can get them by calling on the secretary, J. Roy Cessna, of Bedford. Books will be mailed to anyone desiring them. Send a two-cent stamp to cover the expense of postage. In the premium book will be found hundreds of articles on which premiums are offered. Read it over carefully. There may be premiums offered which will be attractive to you.

Price of Admission.

The Fair Association will do all in its power to assure a comfortable and hospitable reception to all those who attend the fair. No efforts will be spared to make your visit this year pleasant and profitable.

The admission this year will be 35 cents for persons over 15 years of age, 25 cents for persons between the ages of 7 and 15. Children under the age of 7 years will be admitted free, when accompanied by their parents or some one in charge. The admission this year is 10 cents higher than former years. This is necessary on account of meeting the increased expenses of conducting an up-to-date fair. Attractions, amusements and the expenses connected with presenting a successful exhibition make this raise in price necessary to meet the heavy expenses connected with a first-class fair. The fair last year was well worth the price of admission and more. The directors intend to make the coming fair the best ever held, so make your arrangements to be present one day, two days or four days, if you can do so.

No admission is charged for teams. Persons driving to the fair are entitled to drive onto the grounds by simply purchasing tickets for themselves.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

Arrests by Policemen the Only Exciting Feature.

The strike situation on the Broad Top road remains practically unchanged, there being no breaks in the ranks of the strikers and the officials remaining firm. All freight is being moved in daylight.

The only exciting features are some arrests by the company's policemen, among whom W. I. Stratford, who was dismissed by the company several months ago because of his action but was re-employed since the strike, and Daniel O'Shea of this place, formerly policeman at Everett, Bellwood and Hyndman, have gained some notoriety.

In describing the manner in which the policemen are performing their work the Saxton Herald says:

"The first arrest, that of Amsby Davis last Wednesday, was made by Stratford; the only charge against him was that of trespassing. According to Davis' version and that of witnesses, he was at the Riddlesburg station with a ticket for Saxton. In waiting for the train Davis walked a few feet from the platform onto the track and leaned against a box car. Stratford walked up and told him to get off the track. Davis went on to the platform and then walked down to Shaw's store. He then went back to the station platform and Stratford, following him, told Davis to go inside the station, which he did. He was in the station but a short time when Stratford went in and placed Davis under arrest, and when the train came took him to Huntingdon, outside the jurisdiction of the arrest, and placed Davis in the lockup, kept him there a couple of hours and then took him to Bedford, where a quick hearing was had and a fine and costs of $8.87 was imposed, which Davis paid, his bondmen not appearing in time. The manner in which Stratford handled Davis led observers to suppose that he had in custody a desperate criminal."

"Three other arrests have been made, all for trespassing, two of them thrown to court. Monday evening a lumberman from Coalbont was arrested here by O'Shea, bail was refused and the man hustled off to Bedford without a hearing here."

An Enjoyable Surprise.
Monday night a number of the friends of Miss Maude Powell gathered at her home, the Arlington Hotel, and tendered her a surprise party, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. The evening was passed in many pleasant ways.

Those present were: Mrs. Harry Gilchrist, Misses Minnie, Nellie and Josephine Davidson, Margaret and Vesta Brightbill, Lenore Armstrong, Flora Spidel, Jennie Leo, Alma May, Sarah Moser, Emily Shires and Carrie Gardner, of this place, Misses Edna Kellinger of Philadelphia, Bertha Moore of Pittsburgh, and Cora Smouse of Cumberland; Wilbur Heller and James Russell, of Shippensburg; Ed. McVicker, Clarence Shoemaker, Edwin Davidson, Charles Brightbill, Tom McNamara, Russell Boore, Gus Wagner, Ralph Stevens, Fred and Milton Samuel, James Irwin, George Faiber and Hayden Seifert.

TARIFF BILL A LAW

President Signs Payne Measure—Party Pledges Broken.

The tariff has been revised and the extraordinary session of Congress has been brought to a close. Both Houses adjourned sine die officially at 6 o'clock last Thursday night. The bill went into effect at midnight.

That is the time entered upon the journals but as a matter of fact the adjournment was taken in the House at 5:38 p. m. and in the Senate at 5:58 p. m. The conference report of the bill was agreed to by the Senate by a vote of 47 to 31 when the vote was taken at 2 p. m. and soon afterwards the concurrent resolution making certain changes in the leather schedule was adopted by both Houses.

President Taft arrived at the capitol at 4:45 p. m. and entered the room set aside for the occupation of the President on the concluding day of a session of Congress. His appearance there, the first time since his incumbency as President, caused members of Congress to desert the two chambers and form in line to be received by him.

There was a constant procession of handshaking statesmen through the President's room from the time of his arrival until his departure at 5:50 o'clock.

Just as the hands of the gold clock in the President's room reached six minutes past five the Payne tariff bill, as the measure will be known, was laid before the President. He picked up a pen supplied by Chairman Payne of the House Ways and Means Committee, which had been used by both the Vice President and the Speaker in signing the bill and attached his signature. After writing "William H. Taft" the President added: "Signed five minutes after five o'clock, August 6, 1909. W. H. T."

Standing about the table were Senator Aldrich, Representative Payne and many other members of the Senate and House. Mr. Payne stood with hand extended waiting to receive the pen with which the bill was signed. He took it with a boyish glee overspreading his face.

Another pen was handed to the President and he wrote the word "approved" and handed the pen to Representative Langly of Kentucky.

Thus became a law the tariff bill which it was promised in the Republican platform and by Republican campaign speakers, big and little—from Taft down, would revise the tariff downward. This the bill, on the whole, fails to do, and the people have another instance of "revision" by "friends" of the tariff and the trusts.

ATTENTION, CITIZENS!

The committees appointed last week at the citizens' meeting met with the Borough Council Tuesday evening. Plans were discussed and approved by the Council and it was decided that they and all citizens who are interested in better water supply will go to the Todd reservoir today at 2 p. m. to view the premises. A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock this evening.

Railroad in Doubt.

A half century ago Hollidaysburg lost an opportunity to become a railroad center because its people sought to compel the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to pay prohibitory prices for real estate for the occupancy of a round house, shops and track. The company refused to be held up and thereupon founded the great railroad city of Altoona. History may repeat itself out at East Freedom, where the township authorities are insisting that the Bedford and Hollidaysburg Railroad Company build either overhead bridges or subways across the public highway. The officials of the company claim these bridges and subways are unnecessary in thinly settled communities like Freedom Township and that the expense thereof would be greater than the cost of building the railroad itself. Pending this controversy matters are at a standstill in the railroad construction work, and fears are now entertained that this much-desired line between Blair and Bedford Counties will never be built.—Altoona Tribune.

Attempt to Wreck Train.

A man by the name of Painter, while walking on the Huntingdon and Broad Top tracks between Hopewell and Riddlesburg last Wednesday, found a lot of iron piled on the rails but it was removed before the arrival of a train either north or south. It is thought that the rails were piled on the tracks with the intention of wrecking a train.

BEDFORD SPRINGS

Nestled in the bosom of the hills, With wooded vale and sparkling hills, Old Bedford lies. The mossy dell, encircling bubbling spring, No wonder that my heart takes wing Where pleasure lies.

The sunlight glids the mountain top, The shadows glide and never stop. The splendor of the day, I love its calm and sweet repose, With scent of jessamine and rose— No wonder that we stay.

The grace and beauty of the place, I see reflected on each face. That here abides, With health and vigor on the links, The pool in which we play high jinks, And famous mountain rides.

The shaded lawn and great, wide porch, Afford relief from heats that scorch. Away back home, And now the boys and girls cavort, Over the level tennis court, That pleasure theirs alone.

Their elders walk, or sit and muse, While memory brings up other views: Of days long past, When they were young and blithe and gay, Enjoying pleasures of the sweet day, That could not last.

But here the health-reviving spring Will tempt and countless numbers bring. To taste its joys, Transform old ladies into girls, Cause them to lose their silver curls, The old men into boys.

THE RIDEAU CANAL

Built 1826-32 in Case of War With United States—Wedding on Board.

ARTICLE IV

Monday morning, June 28, at 7 o'clock our party boarded the Rideau Queen, a modern steamboat on the Rideau Canal.

The Rideau Canal was built from 1826 to 1832 by the British Government. After the War of 1812, the British, fearing that in case of a subsequent war with the United States it would be impossible for them to get supplies and ammunition into the interior of Canada, built this great water-way. The canal is less than 100 miles long, but the changes in level will be understood better when we say there are 47 locks in the canal and from Ottawa to Newboro, the boat rises 295 feet and in going from Newboro to Kingston the boat falls, in easy stages, a distance of 192 feet, except at Jones' Falls where in three locks the boat drops 88 feet.

At Manotick, the engineer discovered a broken part to his engine and the boat was stopped for two hours for repairs. This delayed our boat and instead of getting into Portland at 10:30 for Monday night it was after midnight when we arrived. The delay was not regretted as it gave us a longer moonlight ride on Rideau Lake and those who desired to commune with the ever-changing scenes could fill their hearts and minds with such aesthetic scenes no language can impart from one to the other.

The boat was too small to provide room for all to remain on board and some went to the hotel in Portland. At 7:30 Tuesday morning the Rideau Queen entered the most magnificent part of her journey. In this part of the route, the course was largely through lakes, heavily dotted with summer cottages, hotels and fishing houses. Many people from the states buy a small island in one of these lakes and erect a summer cottage to suit their tastes and their pocket books. Some of the houses cost as much as $20,000, while others are more modest.

The search for a cool place to spend the summer need not go beyond this locality, and as we sped along across these lakes we occasionally beheld "Old Glory" planted on an island or at a wharf and we knew that people from the states were there. An ovation always followed.

A Wedding

Before arriving at Westport it was announced that a wedding party would get on the boat and would be with us all day traveling to Kingston. The scattering of rice on the wharf soon confirmed the story and choir leader Hapgood with the full chorus greeted the party with "Here Comes the Bride," seconded by "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." The happy bridal party entered Social Hall and the sixty members of the party advanced and extended the warmest congratulations to the happy bride and the bridegroom. This over, the choir sang, "Blest be the tie that binds." The groom was William Jordan of Elgin, Ont., and the bride, Miss Grant of Westport. They were each given a badge and made members of the party, and made to feel at home among their new acquaintances.

At Jones' Falls we were more than attracted by the large falls as well as the large wall built to raise the water for the purpose of carrying the boats over a low place. This is one of the most attractive places along the Rideau.

Capt. D. Noonan

On this trip we were escorted by Capt. D. Noonan, Vice President and General Manager of Rideau Lakes Navigation Company. Captain Noonan is the owner of 75 per cent. of the Many Bedford women know this. Read what one has to say about it: Mrs. Mary Corle, E. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "I suffered from backache and other symptoms of kidney disease for a long time and nothing seemed to do me the least good. My health was affected by this malady and I was generally miserable. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Dull's Drug Store. They gave me prompt relief and I am glad to say that I am now feeling better and stronger in every way."

stock of the company. The Rideau Queen cost $35,000; the Rideau King cost $20,000. Captain Noonan resides at Kingston, Ont., and those who desire to take a delightful trip can get literature and particulars by addressing the affable captain. He owns a beautiful cottage at Chaffee's Locks. He made a special effort to point out all the places of interest along the route for the two days' trip and we were landed in Kingston Tuesday evening.

Kingston, Ont.

To the writer Kingston appeared as we would expect to find the quaint towns of Old England. Some parts of the town appeared intensely quaint. Outside of the Barracks, Kingston is chiefly noted for its antiquity. We were quartered at Hotel Frontenac and after getting a supper at the British American took a carriage drive over the city. Here and there over the city, you see a large, imposing residence, and invariably you find it owned by a man from Pittsburg or some other American city. The town is interesting to visit and to the American on a sight-seeing tour is well worth a brief stay.

It was our good pleasure to pass the Episcopal Church while the sexton, a native of Dublin, formerly a resident of Wilkes-Barre, was sprinkling the lawn. He invited us to stop inside, and a massive church it was. In the centre of the middle aisle was a name plate and the sexton explained that beneath that spot is buried the remains of the first Governor General of Canada. The church was creditable for its massive structure, but it was evident that both internal and external adornment were needed. The church has plenty of wealth but the members are waiting, it is said, for the wealthy ones to die, in the hope of getting a bequest to beautify the structure. At present it seems none of the members are candidates for that glory.

The next morning, June 30th, we found our train ready for the final trip and the pleasant trip of the party was soon to end. The run was from Kingston to Toronto, and the engine sawed off the mile posts at the rate of one a minute. The Grand Trunk people placed at the disposal of our party a brand new train of vestibuled cars, together with a special passenger agent, in the person of R. Mc C. Smith. The Grand Trunk lines run from Chicago to Portland, Maine, a distance of 1,137 miles, with branches to all important connections with the United States.

During the trip Mr. Smith showed such a marked attention to every detail that not a single passenger, nor a single piece of baggage was left. The names of the party were sent ahead to every hotel so that rooms could be assigned before arrival, and the thousand and one things were looked after with that calm, patient manner that the editorial party felt like giving some substantial evidence of appreciation, and on that farewell trip all the passengers were called to one car, when President Thompson, in behalf of the party, presented to Mr. Smith a handsome Panama hat. Mr. Smith, in his usual modest manner, accepted the gift and said that he had done nothing but what he was instructed to do by his employers, The Grand Trunk Railway Company.

The trip had been so delightfully pleasant from the very beginning to the end that all felt loath to part with the many friends who had gathered on that occasion, and while the train was pulling into Toronto the farewells were said and the party was scattered.

Toronto

We had the pleasure of visiting the beautiful city of Toronto 14 years ago but our better half did not have that pleasure, so we decided to prolong our stay in Canada for another day. This city, being so near the American borders, takes on some of its thrift and progress. Situated on Lake Ontario, the water front is a busy place at all hours. Mrs. W. spent a few hours shopping in Toronto and found bargain day in one of the department stores, as is their custom the day before Dominion Day.

Sight-seeing autos run at regular intervals over the city but unfortunately we were too late to get one of them, so did the next best thing in hiring an automobile to show us the city, and we discovered that this was the way not to see the city. The guide evidently got the idea that we wanted a ride instead of seeing the city.

Toronto is a beautiful city, and is the seat of the University of Toronto; is the second largest city in Canada, and is a great manufacturing and distributing center. It has a population of 356,000 people, 217 churches, 27 law courts, 25,000 telephones, seven daily and 49 weekly papers, and everything else progressive in proportion.

We remained over night. The next, July 1st, was Dominion Day, as explained in the previous article. There was no shooting or fire crackers, but all the stores were closed and the inhabitants were preparing for a ride on the lakes, to wander to the parks, or take a train to Hamilton to see the horse races. Hamilton is the great horse racing track of America. A special train of ten or twelve cars runs every day from Toronto and return to carry the people who want to see the races.

We took the regular train from Toronto to Niagara Falls and found many persons on the train who were on the way to Hamilton to see the races. When crossing the Niagara River the custom officers, as usual, went through the baggage looking for dutiable goods. We arrived in Buffalo Thursday noon, and spent a few hours with Henry G. Give Children Sugar

Children may eat too much sugar and they may also stay too long in their bathtub, or in the creek when they go in swimming, or get tanned by a headache from playing too long in the sun, or chilled by staying too long in the open air; but is that any sound reason why they should be deprived of sweets, sunlight, baths and fresh air, or discouraged from indulging in them? All that is needed, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Success Magazine, is a little common sense regulation and judicious supervision, not prohibition or denunciation. Most of the extraordinary craving for pure sugar and candy, which is supposed to lead the average child to inevitably "founder himself" if left to his own sweet will and a box of candy, is due to a state of artificial and abnormal sugar starvation, produced by an insufficient amount of this invaluable food in its regular diet. Children who are given plenty of sugar on their mush, bread and butter and puddings, a regular allowance of cake and plenty of sweet fruits, are almost free from this craze for candy, this tendency to gorge themselves to surfeit, and can usually be trusted with both the candy box and sugar bowl.

Vinegar in Frosting

A teaspoonful of vinegar beaten into boiled frosting when the flavoring is added will keep it from being brittle and breaking when cut, and it will be as moist in a week as the day it was made. Also a teaspoonful of vinegar added to each pint of home-made syrup will prevent it from candying.

STATE CONFERENCE

Of Charities to be Held in Harrisburg
December 7-9.

Pennsylvania is to have a State Conference of Charities and Correction organized along the lines of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, which held its thirty-sixth annual meeting at Buffalo, N. Y., in June. At the suggestion of Hon. Francis J. Torrence of Pittsburgh, the president of the State Board of Charities, about seventy-five Pennsylvanians, representing Conference at Buffalo, met and perfected plans to hold a State Conference of Charities and Correction in Harrisburg December 7, 8 and 9.

A committee on organization was appointed with F. H. Nibbecker of Glen Mills, Pa., as chairman and Mrs. Edward A. Sowers of Ridgeway, Pa., as secretary. Governor Stuart will be invited to make the opening address and Mr. Torrence, President of the State Board of Charities, will make an address on the work of the that Board of Charities. A program to include the discussion of problems in connection with the care of dependent, neglected and delinquent classes is being prepared and prominent speakers will be present to take part in the proceedings.

It is the purpose of the promoters of this conference to include in the organization representatives of all forms of charitable and correctional work, both public and private, in the State of Pennsylvania. Acceptances have already been received from representatives of hospitals for the insane, schools for feeble minded children, institutions for the education of the blind and the deaf and dumb, reformatories, state penitentiaries, houses of refuge, juvenile courts, children's aid societies, social settlements, play ground associations, societies to protect children from cruelty, various orphan asylums and other children's institutions and a large number of other agencies working in the interest of the unfortunate.

Every citizen of the state interested in any kind of charitable or correctional work is invited to attend the Conference. Further information can be obtained by addressing the president or secretary of the Committee on Organization as noted above.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. S. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Why Eat Vegetables?

All green vegetables are blood purifiers; they help to dissolve other food in the stomach and assist digestion. The green vegetables of spring and summer seem to be specially provided to keep the system in order, says the Delineator.

Asparagus is a very wholesome vegetable, and is almost a specific for those who suffer from kidney affections. Spinach is light and laxative and wonderful properties have been ascribed to it. Eaten frequently, it is sure to improve a muddy complexion through its work of toning and cleansing the system. It is useful in cases of rheumatism. Peas, carrots and beets are vegetables for thin, nervous, irritable people. They help to produce a good, rich blood, and the first of the year is a food as well as a medicine.

The free use of rhubarb is considered a good tonic, and will prevent the use of medicine which is often apparently necessary to tone up the system. There is some sodium in the rhubarb and a little potash. The combination of these alkalies with the acids produces salts, which have vitalizing power in the blood, and so are very healthful.

If you are all run down Foley's Kidney Remedy will help you. It strengthens the kidneys so they will eliminate the impurities from the blood that depress the nerves, and cause exhaustion, backache, rheumatism, and urinary irregularities, which sap the vitality. Do not delay. Take Foley's Kidney Remedy at once. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Making Money On the Farm

VII.—Small Grain Breeding

By C. V. GREGORY.
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"
Copyright, 1909, by American Press
Association

Small grain breeding is second only to corn breeding in importance. Indeed, there is even more chance for improvement along this line, since so little has been done already. The average yield of oats in Iowa in 1908 was only twenty-three bushels to the acre, while many fields yielded three times that much. This is only one instance out of many that could be given to show the great need for improved seed.

With small grain, as with corn, the work of improvement must largely be done for each special locality. Each type of soil and climate affects the crops in a different way, and varieties that yield well in one part of the country may fail utterly under different conditions. This makes it necessary for each locality to have its small grain breeder. There is no opening along the line of special farming that offers greater opportunities to the ambitious young farmer than this. The work is a little more particular than corn breeding perhaps, but the results are just as sure and the profits just as great. Even though you may not care to take up small grain breeding as a business, it will pay you to carry it on to a limited extent at least to provide improved seed for your own use.

Selection the Basis of Improvement.
The requirements of the various grains vary with the use to which they are to be put, but the yield is an important point with all. Selection is the basis for improvement in yield as well as in the other points that will be taken up later. The first step is to select the variety that seems to be doing best in your locality, and use that as the basis of improvement. The simplest method of breeding is to select a few of the best heads at harvest time to start with. A great difference will be observed at this time. Some heads of oats, for instance, will contain three times as many berries as others not a foot away. The seed from these large heads, following the law of "like produces like," give larger yields.

The seed from the selected heads is sown on a plot by itself the next spring. Small grain is not like corn in that it is normally self fertilizing. The flower is inside the hull, so that the pollen cannot get from one to the other. The only way cross pollination can be accomplished is by hand. Some improved varieties have been produced in this way, but the operation is too delicate and the results too uncertain for the beginner. Being self fertilized, the only way small grain can be mixed is mechanically, by mixing the seed. It is not necessary that the breeding plot be a considerable distance away from the other fields, as in the case of corn.

The produce of this breeding plot should be thrashed separately and used for planting a larger field the next year. The year after that there will be enough seed for the entire acreage of small grain.

This method is simple and easily worked out on any farm. The trouble with it is that the inherited differences in the yielding ability of different heads is not fully taken into account. The only way to tell which of two equal sized heads will yield the most is by actual test. If the greatest improvement is to be made individual head tests will have to be resorted to.

Individual Head Tests.
These individual head tests are carried on in much the same manner as the individual ear tests with corn. The heads should be carefully selected in the fall in addition to the size of heads, the stiffness of the straw, its height and freedom from rust and other fungus diseases should be noted. The rows in the breeding plot should be four inches apart and the kernels dropped the same distance apart in the row. The aim throughout should be to have the conditions as nearly like those of the field as possible. The number of rows will depend to a considerable extent on the time that can be devoted to the work. The larger the number the greater the probability of producing something good. Fifty rows is a good number to start with.

Increasing the Yields.
In the fall the rows should be carefully examined. Some will be lodged badly. Others will have poorly filled, short heads. Still others will be badly rusted or smutted. Discard all these and harvest and weigh the produce of each good row separately. There will be a few that will be considerably better than the rest. From these enough of the best heads should be selected to plant next year's breeding plot. The rest should be thrashed together and used for planting an increase bed. The seed from the increase bed is used to plant a bigger field and the seed from this for the general fields or for sale.

By selecting the best heads for each year's breeding plot improvement is rapid and marked. It takes two or three years after the improved seed has been produced to obtain it in sufficient quantities for general use, but the results will pay for all the trouble, even if you produce seed for your own use only. After the superiority of your new strain is once shown, however, you will be besieged with requests for seed and can add considerably to your income by supplying the demand thus created. The trade will continue good, for each year you will have something a little better to offer.

In addition to the selection for yield, strong straw and freedom from disease there are a number of other points that should be considered. These depend to a considerable extent on the use to which the grain is to be put.

In selecting oats the per cent of hull is one of the most important points to look to. This varies from 20 to 50 per cent of the entire weight. Since oat hulls are of little more value than straw, it is evident that the smaller the percentage of hull the more valuable the oats will be. A mere examination will show the difference between a thick and a thin shelled oat. To determine the differences more exactly it is necessary to weigh a hundred oats or so on a fine balance such as any doctor or druggist possesses, then press out the hulls and weigh them and calculate the per cent. The weight of oats to the measured bushel varies from twenty-five to fifty pounds. The heavy oats are of course the most valuable. Nearly all grain elevators have a small device for testing the weight per bushel.

Another point to be considered is the tendency to stool. In localities where the summers are cool and late varieties can be grown, a tendency to stool considerably is desirable, since a thick stand can be secured with less seed. Where the summers are hot and early varieties must be grown, however, the tendency to stool to any great extent should be discouraged, since stooling always delays ripening. Often a hull will be seen partly inclosing a smaller oat. These small oats are known as pin oats. They lessen the yield, and a strain which contains many of them should be discriminated against.

There are three general types of oats—side oats, hullless oats and spreading oats. The hullless varieties do not yield enough to be of any great value. The side oats, in which the berries are all on one side of the head, are grown in this country to a limited extent only. Most of the oats grown are of the spreading varieties. There are varieties of oats of almost every color, white, yellow, black and green being the most common. There is little difference in yield that can be ascribed to color. If they are grown in a community in large enough quantities so that they can be shipped in carload lots the selling price will not vary much.

Selecting Wheat and Barley Heads.
In selecting wheat heads those that do not shell too readily should be given the preference, since much wheat is lost by shelling during harvest. The grains should be plump, smooth and bright. The seed coat should be tough and not cracked. Where the bran is brittle and cracks easily it is difficult to separate it from the flour. The kernels should be hard. Hard wheat makes better flour owing to the greater percentage of gluten, and millers will pay more for it. Beardless wheat is more easily handled, but it does not yield as well as the bearded varieties. In barley the hull adheres to the kernel in thrashing. The grains should be bright, as the quality of brewing barley depends largely upon the color. The best barley for brewing purposes is that which contains the most starch. This can be determined by cutting through the grain and noting the percentage of starch to horny parts. For feeding purposes a smaller percentage of starch is desired.

Beardless barley is a little less hardy and yields a little less than the bearded sorts, but the convenience of handling more than makes up for this. There are two types of barley, the two rowed and the six rowed. The six rowed varieties have given the best satisfaction in this country.

The Germans say: "Good health" because they maintain, and not without reason, that the sneeze is a warning of the approach of a cold, and also marks the movement when a charm, a wish, or a suggestion may drive it away. Acts xix, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

On the return of Paul from his last journey he landed at Caesarea, where there must have been quite a company of believers besides the household of Cornelius and Philip and his four daughters. We can scarcely think of Paul passing through without fellowship with them, for at another time we find him and his company spending several days at Philip's home (xxi, 8, 9). The church at Jerusalem would be desirous to hear all about this great journey and the open doors in Europe, but the record simply says "saluted the church" (xviii, 22), which may have included a rehearsal of the Lord's doings in Europe. Then during his stay at Antioch he would not fail to tell of those households at Philippi who accepted the Lord Jesus and of all the marvelous grace of God. This brings us to his third journey, concerning the beginning of which we read that "he went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia. In order, strengthening all the disciples (xviii, 23). He has told us in his epistles how to be strong, so we can understand how he strengthened them. See Eph. iii, 16-19; vi, 10, 11; II Tim. ii, 1. There is no salvation, no strength, no victory, except in Christ Jesus, by His word and Spirit and by virtue of His precious blood.

When Paul left Priscilla and Aquila at Ephesus on his return home from Corinth he did not know that he was thus providing teachers for a man already mighty in the Scriptures as far as he knew them, but so it turned out (xviii, 23-28). If increased knowledge of God is given to any of us it is that we may meekly instruct others who have not the same measure of light. Blessed that we may be a blessing is the Lord's way for His redeemed. When Paul reached Ephesus on this third tour he found disciples who had been taught by Apollos, evidently before he had been further instructed by Priscilla and Aquila, knowing only the baptism of John. When Paul had instructed them more fully they received through him in the name of the Lord Jesus a special filling of the Holy Spirit and spoke with tongues and prophesied (xix, 6).

It seems quite clear that when Aquila and Priscilla heard Apollos in the synagogue they did not attempt publicly to enlighten him, but with humility and loving tact took him privately, probably to their home, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. Then it may have been that Apollos thought better to begin elsewhere with the new light he had received rather than where he would have to confess that he had not previously been fully taught in some things. But this has been human weakness, and this is only a suggestion. As to Apollos' two instructors, they were only humble tentmakers, and, while doubtless glad to help any who were willing to be helped, they did not feel called to act as public teachers.

For three months Paul spoke boldly in the synagogue at Ephesus, talking to them from the Scriptures concerning the kingdom of God (verse 8). See this great topic elsewhere in the Acts in chapters 1, 3, 6; viii, 12; xiv, 22; xx, 25; xxviii, 31, and from other portions of Scripture seek to understand it and then let the Lord use you to help others to see that the kingdom of God is nothing less than the will of God done on earth as in heaven and that when it is fully come a righteous Israel shall be the earthly center, a blessing to all the nations on the earth, and Jesus, as son of David, shall occupy the throne of David at Jerusalem (Acts ii, 30; iii, 21; Luke i, 31-33; Isa. ix, 6, 7; lxix, 1-3, 6, 7).

This is the age of "the mystery." The kingdom being postponed, the church the body of Christ, is being gathered to reign with Him when He shall return in His glory. To this end we should carry the gospel everywhere, having the ambition which Paul had to preach Christ specifically to those who have not yet heard of him (Rom. xv, 20), and when the unbelievers resist and talk against "the way" then enter some other door in the same town or go to another city or town. When the Jews resisted, Paul continued teaching in Ephesus, but at another center, "in the school of one Tyrannus," and for two years he continued, so that all they which dwell in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus (verse 10). He was in Ephesus at this time about three years, warning people night and day and oftentimes with tears (xx, 31). This was the Lord's time to sow this part of His field, but in chapter xvi, 6, His time had not fully come. When we are fully yielded and can truly say "My times are in thy hand" (Ps. cxxx, 15) we will rest in the Lord and dwell with Him to open or shut, as He shall please, having full confidence in His management. God for some reason wrought in a special and unusual way upon the bodies of people through Paul at this time (verses 11, 12), probably because the devil by his agency was working specially too. But the Lord exceeded all the power of the adversary, the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified, the word of God grew mightily and prevailed, and there was what might be called a $50,000 bonfire of the devil's literature.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

The legislative act which increased the salaries of court criers and tipstaves in this state, the former to $60 and the latter to $40, is far from complimentary to the Bench and Bar, for the crier now gets $120 a year more than the District Attorney and the "tips" are better paid than Associate Judges—in this county.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

In this issue of The Gazette we publish as news the proposed amendments to the constitution of Pennsylvania, and we request our readers to preserve them as they will not appear in The Gazette again.

The authorizing of the publication of these proposed amendments in three Republican papers in this county and not in the only Democratic paper shows a disposition on the part of the state to keep from Democratic readers what they propose to do and incidentally to crush all papers that will not bow the knee at the bidding of the Penrose Machine or of some "local annex."

Time was when the object of advertising was to give the widest possible publicity. Such was the case up to the incumbency of Governor Pennypacker, as is shown by the history of legislation pertaining to legal advertising in this county.

Some fifty years ago legal notices were required to be placed in but one paper in this county. Evidently because it was thought this was not sufficient to give adequate publicity the requirement was raised to two. When papers began to multiply it was made the two "having the largest circulation," and still later it was made the two "having the largest circulation and of opposite political parties."

Here the tide turned, the publicity idea dropped out and was replaced by the gang idea of rewarding party papers for political work.

During Governor Pennypacker's term the Legislature passed bills to repeal the last two acts above referred to and the Governor signed the one repealing the act requiring publication in papers of "opposite political parties" but he balked on the one requiring the use of the two "having the largest circulation" and gave his reasons.

Last winter the same bill was sent to Governor Stuart and the affixing of his name completed the backward course, which again enables public officials to use their offices for political purposes.

POLITICAL PERFDY

The recent tariff bill is now a law and the people of the nation have again been deceived with regard to a downward revision. It would seem that minds of common calibre ought soon be able to see that it is not wise to allow the tariff to be revised by its "friends," for they are "friends" of the trusts and combines, as has just been demonstrated, which the tariff has made.

There is but one remedy. The people of the nation must take up the matter and begin a crusade of retirement of Congressmen who are owned and manipulated by the trusts and fill their places with men who have the welfare of the plain people uppermost in mind, and who have the courage of their convictions—men who can neither be bribed nor brow-beaten into doing the bidding of combinations and combines.

It is often the case that voters are deceived in candidates for Congress as well as for other offices, but it is high time they cease to clothe in legislative robes men whom they know to be faithless from their past record. Until the individual members of our law-making bodies are chosen on merit we may expect just such outrages as have been perpetrated in the fixing of the schedules of the recent bill. So long as individual members are men who disregard alike "political promises and personal pledges" we may expect Congress to be controlled by trusts.

After pointing out many instances of buncoing the North American, a Republican paper, continues to speak its mind as follows:

The scandal of Cannon's relations with the worsted men and with Littaer, the New York glove maker and lobbyist, has been exposed.

The swindle of the "Dutch standard" for the Sugar Trust's benefit; the cheat of "punched and unpunched" structural steel for the Steel Trust; the final breach of faith in the shoe "joker," all are recalled.

But such trades and like treachery have been known in the past. What never has been seen before was the acknowledged leader of a great party accused day after day of willful falsification and being unable or unwilling to repel the accusations.

There was the denial by Aldrich that the German government's report on wages was on hand. And then the exposure followed that it had been sent to his committee, but returned to the State Department, whence it reappeared only on the day of the final passage of the bill.

There was the open and undenied declaration of John Norris of New York, representing newspaper publishers in their effort to get lower duties on pulp and paper, that in one statement to the Senate Aldrich had been guilty of "sixteen grave errors of fact" of which he was bound to have recognition.

There was the stinging denunciation of deliberate deception and misrepresentation by Aldrich of the cotton schedule. And not one word of valid defence was he able to make to Dooliver and LaFollette.

And there was the final breach of faith, and promise-breaking to his southern Democratic friends when he tossed aside the promise for free cotton bagging.

The history of the Payne-Aldrich-Taft-Trust tariff bill is a record of shameless trading, deliberate deception, disregard of party honor and of fair dealing on the part of Cannon and Aldrich and other leaders and followers of the party in power; in short it is but the latest instance of political perfidy.

Western Crops Good Sutton, Neb.

To The Gazette—

The Bedford County boys still raising wheat and selling land in Nebraska have finished threshing 223 acres of wheat; a total yield of six thousand one hundred bushels, or an average of better than 27 bushels to the acre. This wheat sold for one dollar per bushel and was grown on land that is worth one hundred dollars per acre.

The land that we are selling in the western part of Nebraska for $15 to $20 per acre will raise just as much wheat to the acre as our hundred dollar land here. There hasn't been a crop failure in this state for many years, the yield of crops has been large, and the prices high; this accounts for the rapid rise in land and grain. The party who has one thousand dollars or more to invest should not fail to come to Nebraska and see the land that is now on the market at $20 per acre. If you buy some of that it will surely make big interest on your investment.

Truly yours,
J. D. Dennis.

REMOVE IMPERFECT FRUIT

Farmers Should Devote Attention to Orchards Now.

Schellsburg, August 10, 1909

Our orchards here have been badly hurt by the dry weather and also by the aphids, the codling moth, and the curculio, a heavy percentage of the fruit showing the effects of the insect ravages. Reports from New York show that the apple crop there has also suffered heavily, and the prospect is for a fair price this fall for what apples we have.

The good effect of heavy pruning this spring shows in our orchards here. Already the Rall's Genets are as large as they were last year at picking time, in spite of the fact that the drought has been more severe than last year. Other apples show similar good effects from heavy pruning; and it seems as if the percentage of stung apples is larger on the unpruned trees.

The percentage of imperfect apples is very heavy, and those which are now very small, ill-shaped or stung ought to be taken off, to give the perfect fruit the benefit of the full strength of the tree. Buyers will cull out the bad fruit anyhow, and if it is taken off now, a better price may be asked for what is left, especially in view of the fact that it will be larger and a little better colored.

The added value to the apples left is out of all proportion to the cost of thinning; and if we would all practice getting rid of the imperfect fruit and working for larger and better colored apples, it would not be long till Bedford County apples would bring a premium in the market.

Three grades ought to be established this fall, and great care taken to pack honestly. Grade No. 2 should contain apples running up to two and three-quarter inches, with a few larger sized apples of imperfect shape. Grade No. 1 should run about 3 to 3 1/2 inches. "Fancy" graded to size in each barrel or package does not wholly mean large apples. Color, shape and freedom from marks make any apple of 3 1/2 inches a "Fancy" apple; and a smaller size will grade Fancy in some varieties which naturally are small apples, such as Jonathan, Rall's Genet, Grimes, Winesap, etc. The main thing in grading apples as "Fancy" is to get them of as nearly uniform size as possible, good color and shape and free from defacing marks, stings or unsoundness. They ought also to have the stems on.

With the apples hurt as badly as they have been in some sections by the two successive years of drought, it will pay to pick early and store away. Apples are going to drop badly this fall, unless I am much mistaken. Picking when the seeds are turned brown will prevent dropping, and, if the apples are stored where they do not heat, will prevent rotting for a longer period than allowing them to ripen on the tree.

But just now the time is to get into the orchards and take off the apples which are not going to make saleable fruit anyhow, and are simply sapping the vitality of the tree for nothing.

A. B. Ross.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Get Out All Your Old Silver Jewelry and Wear It.

After lying dormant for more than half a century the fancy for silver jewelry is reviving. The metal has had a classic association ever since the ancients consecrated it to Diana.

Necklaces of small cut jet beads are much worn this summer by those who affect collarless frocks.

Many of the season's silk stockings have the heels and toes lined with little thread. These are the new substitutes for the silk stockings with a cotton sole.

A welcome revival is the grateful form of skirt which consists of three flounces, sometimes called a "three decker." It lends itself well to soft muslin and embroidered lawns which are worn this season.

There is no more satisfactory frock than that which can be worn over a guimpe. The frock illustrated is in the princess style with tucks about the waist and developed from one of the pretty silk and cotton muslins trimmed with heavy lace banding edged with a thinner insertion. The blouse-portion is scalloped. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Mantion pattern comes for girls fourteen and sixteen years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number (655), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. The guimpe is separate, No. 621. Send 10 cents for each pattern. If in haste send an additional two-cents for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

Stocks and Belts Help to Make the Costume Smart.

Among the pretty effects in women's neckwear are medium length ties of heavy white linen-embroidered in colored polka dots, with scalloped ends to match. The embroidery is done in pretty shades of red or blue.

Often the manner in which a belt or sash is arranged will give the effect of a small, round waist without at the same time throwing out the hips. All women still have a horror of large hips and probably always will have.

An entire suit of pongee is here pictured. Such a costume will be found very satisfactory, as it may be worn on a number of occasions. The gown is a graceful semi-princess affair, and the coat has exceptionally becoming and graceful lines. In this case the color is natural pongee, and the trimming bands and tie are of dotted silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

These May Mantion patterns come in sizes from 22 to 40 inches bust measure for the gown, No. 630, and for the coat from 34 to 44 inches bust measure, No. 634. Send 10 cents each for these patterns to this office, and they will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

Little Alice Barber of Saltillo, Pa., Joins the Long List of Rejoicing people.

This little 12-year-old orphan girl says she suffered the agonies of Catarrh for more than five years, all remedies failing to relieve her. She was almost deaf and her eyes and voice were badly affected. Less than a month ago she took the advice of her friends and sent for the Great Persian Cure and she says it certainly is great, as she can hear, see and talk almost as well now as even and feels sure she will soon be entirely well. She and her friends are so rejoiced at her wonderful recovery that she feels it her duty to recommend this wonderful remedy to all suffering from this miserable, offensive disease. ALICE BARBER.

No inhaler to buy; no dieting, eat what you wish. No matter how long standing, no matter how many remedies you tried the Great Persian Catarrh Remedy will positively cure you or we will refund your money.

For the next 30 days we will send a full three months' treatment of this wonderful discovery for $1.25, express prepaid, or free trial treatment for 2c stamp. Don't wait; suffer no longer.

Seven Wonders Remedy Co., Lock Box 1, Saltillo, Pa.

Mr. John G. Miller, well known in Bedford and now clerk at the Brunswick Hotel, Huntingdon, Pa., says he can cheerfully endorse the above. That he had suffered from Catarrh for several years, spent considerable money, and obtained no relief until he tried the Great Persian Catarrh Cure and says that he can truthfully recommend this wonderful discovery to any suffering from this dreadful disease as it instantly relieves and positively cures. If you doubt this testimonial write Mr. Miller.

A large attendance and good time is expected.

Come, spend the day with us and see the home where the old pioneer, Frederick Claar, spent a happy, busy and useful life; also view his last resting-place and see some of the thousand or more of his descendants. Refreshments will be served on the grounds, also confectionery. Anything we can do will be done to make the day a pleasant one.

GENERAL LA ROCA.

By LEONARD FRANK ADAMS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Four of us, all Americans, were dining at a cafe in Paris. As the wine flowed we waxed patriotic and sounded, doubtless somewhat loudly, the praises of the United States of America. In doing so we did not deary any other country, and there was no occasion for any one to take offense at our remarks. Nevertheless a man sitting at a neighboring table chiefly notable for a pair of waxed mustaches turned up from the horizontal line of his lips at an angle of forty-five degrees rose and, advancing toward us, said grandiloquently:

"Messieurs, since you are so proud of your country perhaps some one of you would like to stand on its defense. In order to give you an opportunity I pronounce America a barbarous country and all Americans poltroons."

He laid a card on our table bearing the name of Jules Garnier. We recognized it at once as that of one of the most celebrated fencers and duellists in Europe. One of our party, Tisdale, whose equanimity nothing could disturb, took up the card, brought a pair of eyeglasses to bear on it, looked up at M. Garnier and said:

"Americans, m'sieu, comprise Canadians, United States citizens, Mexicans, Cubans, Spaniards and many other peoples. We shall take pleasure in publishing your insult in these lands, recommending a convention of representative swordsmen to select one of their number to engage this slight that you have put upon the whole. Possibly among them one may be found worthy of your steel."

It was plain that the Frenchman had no conception of the satire intended. "I referred only to citizens of the United States, m'sieu," he said.

"Do I understand," inquired Tisdale, regarding the man haughtily, "that you decline to permit other Americans to be interested in the defense of American honor?"

"Not at all. I will meet any one who may be named as a representative."

"Then, m'sieu, within a few months and possibly a few weeks you shall hear from us."

Tisdale handed him his own card, and the duelist soon after, with a step worthy of Don Quixote, left the cafe.

None of our party thought at the time of pursuing the matter further, intending that the man might wait till the day of doom for the action of the "convention" and a challenge. But later three of us, Tisdale, Monroe and myself, met in Rome at the season when preparations were being made for the carnival. While we were there M. Garnier at Paris received the following epistle:

"General Mannaggia la Roca, having been selected to avenge the insult cast upon Americans by M. Jules Garnier, presents his compliments to M. Garnier and will be happy to meet him at the place and date named by the pan-American convention convened to nominate a defender of American honor. The date of meeting is Feb. 1, and the place is the Eternal City, Rome."

Possibly M. Garnier may have winced at this wholesale appropriation of place and date by the "convention," for there was some delay in his reply. Finally a note came from him addressed to General la Roca and appropriated to Tisdale, stating that since the affair had occurred at Paris that was the proper place to settle it. But if a fund were provided for expenses for himself and his second to Rome he would waive the right to fight at Paris and come to Rome.

Tisdale, who was rich, at once wrote M. Garnier, inclosing a check for the expenses of himself and second to Rome and stating that he need give himself no concern on that score, as he and his second would be the guests of the "convention" while in Rome and sent back to Paris by its agent. Presuming that the Frenchman was not well endowed with worldly goods, Tisdale intimated that a fund had been subscribed for the victor. Garnier arrived at Rome with his second, a dapper little Frenchman in a well preserved suit of clothes, the day before the prescribed date of the carnival. He was received by Tisdale, Monroe and myself as representing the "convention" and lodged in the best hotel in Rome. Tisdale assumed to act as second for General la Roca and assented to the use of rapiers. The ground was to be outside the Porta St. Sebastiano (gate of St. Sebastian) on the Appian way.

M. Garnier was informed that a window had been engaged for him and his second from which to witness the carnival festivities.

We three Americans escorted the Frenchmen to the window provided. The street below was full of revelers. Presently a cry was raised, "General Mannaggia la Roca!" Down the street came a little old man with an immense sword riding a donkey, intended for a caricature of the age of chivalry. As he passed the window he was received by the crowd with shouts of laughter, jeers and cries: "Salve (hail) General Mannaggia la Roca!"

We Americans were standing behind Garnier and his second when the general passed, and after noting that the duelist at last understood the satire we quietly withdrew, leaving him to view the carnival and fight General Mannaggia la Roca at his leisure. We heard no more of the affair and came back to America resolved to recommend to all our countrymen that when American honor is to be defended in accordance with the code in vogue during the age of chivalry it be left in the hands of that distinguished swordsman, General Mannaggia la Roca.
